

NEW BLOCKS FOR MEMORIAL SHAFT

Three Western States to Place Tablets in the Washington Monument.

DEDICATION ON APRIL 30

Late Justice Brown Eulogized at Annual Meeting at Theodore W. Noyes' Residence.

The Washington National Monument Society held its annual meeting at the residence of Theodore W. Noyes, 1700 New Hampshire avenue, yesterday afternoon. H. E. F. Macfarland presiding. In the absence of Judge William A. Maury. Among the members present were Herbert Putnam, Brig. Gen. John M. Wilson, F. B. McGuire, Dr. Charles D. Walcott, Aldis E. Browne, F. L. Harvey, Theodore W. Noyes, R. Ross Perry, Bishop Alfred Harding, and Dr. Francis M. Gunnell, U. S. N., retired.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, the chairman formally announced the death of Justice Henry B. Brown, first vice president of the society. R. Ross Perry read a memorial address eulogizing the memory of Justice Brown and reviewing the great services rendered by him to Washington and the country at large. It was ordered that a copy of the address be sent to Mrs. Brown with the society's expression of sympathy.

The states of Colorado, Washington, and Idaho, according to a report made by Secretary Harvey, had provided by acts of their legislatures for memorial blocks in the Washington Monument. He also stated that the Colorado stone, a block of black jule marble, was already in place in the shaft and had been inserted at the 200-foot landing.

Dedication April 30.

It was decided to take steps to arrange for a formal dedication of these memorial stones, preferably April 30, the 15th anniversary of the inauguration of Washington as President. A committee was appointed to confer with the Secretary of War and Representatives of Congress of the States interested with regard to the arrangements.

The election of officers which was to have been held yesterday was postponed until a later date, as was the election of a successor to Justice Brown. After the meeting Mr. Noyes entertained the members of the society together with several hundred other guests invited to meet them at luncheon.

ONE DOSE RELIEVES STOMACH DISTRESS

A gnawing or burning sensation in region of stomach, accompanied by a feeling of utter helplessness, both of body and mind, an obstinate and troublesome dry cough and frequent headaches, or nausea, are unmistakable signs of indigestion, and the very first dose of Phospho-Pepsin will surely give you relief. It is almost like magic, so quick is its action.

Phospho-Pepsin helps the stomach digest the food you eat; it stops fermentation, absorbs gases, neutralizes excess acid and relieves that feeling of distress. It is a scientific combination of essential elements which act on the digestive tract only and gives to it the natural stimulation necessary for health and happiness. Phospho-Pepsin tones the delicate muscular structures of the digestive organs, excites a normal flow of the gastric juices and is in itself a digestive of great potency, and unless your case is very severe, a single package will give you lasting relief.

Phospho-Pepsin is in handy tablet form, easy to take and contains no opiates or habit-forming drugs, neither is it a false excitant which produces only temporary results. Phospho-Pepsin is sold by all first-class druggists, such as James O'Donnell.

TO APPEAR IN SHAW PLAY.

Players Group of Drama League Present Comedy Tonight.

George Bernard Shaw's satirical comedy, "Press Cuttings," will be produced for the first time here by the Players Group of the Washington Center of the Drama League of America, tonight, at the House of Play, 420 M street southwest.

When Bernard Shaw began to write this play he evidently decided to "go the limit." He caricatured persons of high degree in the civil and military establishments of the British. When it finally came to the dramatic censor's hands the ban was put on it. Late in the evening of the 19th of January the censor lifted the ban on condition that "Gen. Mitchiner" should be renamed "Gen. Bones" and "Balsquith" should be changed to "Mr. Johnson."

"Press Cuttings" is to be preceded by the curtain raiser, "Before Sunrise," by Beale Hatton, a diminutive drama picture of English domesticity of the early Victorian period.

DROVE SLEEP FROM HER EYES

The Gem of American Verse Was Written After Midnight in Washington.

When the Army of the Potomac was in camp in the Old Dominion during the month of December, 1861, Julia Ward Howe was a visitor at the headquarters of Gen. George B. McClellan. Passing the entire day among the soldiers this gifted woman was greatly impressed by the fact that the "boys in blue" were all singing "John Brown's Body."

Naturally this native of Boston was greatly distressed by the ineloquent words of the song concerning Old John Brown and while riding about the camp she conceived the idea of giving this famous tune a new lyric. When she returned to the Nation's Capital that evening the new lyric was uppermost in her mind, but she decided to retire for the night and pen the poem in the morning. But the thought of the song drove sleep from her eyes, so she arose and wrote the gem of American verse which bears her name.

On her return to Boston a few days later she submitted her poem to James T. Fields, editor of the Atlantic Monthly. He suggested the title: "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," and under this title the verses were published in the February number of that magazine in 1862. The hymn has since been incorporated in any battle hymn. "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and all the old favorites are in The Herald's collection of "Songs That Never Grow Old."

McReynolds Opposes Inquiry.

Representative Brownard, of Louisiana, yesterday made public a letter from Attorney General McReynolds, expressing his objections to a Congressional inquiry into the discharge of G. Raymond Matthews, of New Orleans, a Department of Justice official accused of bribe taking. He said this might demoralize the departmental service, but he is willing that Mr. Matthews and Bruce Bickel, in charge of the Bureau of Investigation, should testify before the committee.

Dr. Bell Radium Pioneer PROPOSED NEW CANCER METHOD Letter of 1903 Revealed

Washington Scientist First to Suggest Imbedding of Radium in Bodily Tissue.

Washington physicians are wondering if Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone and former president of the National Geographic Society, was not the first person to suggest the imbedding of radium in bodily tissue as a curative agent for deep-seated cancers.

They have discovered a copy of "Science," of July 21, 1903, in which is a letter written by Dr. Bell to Dr. Z. T. Bowers, of Washington, dated July 21, 1903, which they believe to contain the first suggestion for the application of radium in the way that the most recent experiments in the world's scientific centers have proved most beneficial. The letter also appeared in the Scientific American of September 12, 1903. The letter written in Baddeck, Nova Scotia, nearly eleven years ago, follows:

"Dear Dr. Bowers: I understand from you that the Roentgen X-rays and the rays emitted by radium, have been found to have a marked curative effect upon external cancers, but that the effects upon deep-seated cancers have thus far proved unsatisfactory. It has occurred to me that one reason for the unsatisfactory nature of these latter experiments arises from the fact that the rays have been applied externally, thus having to pass through healthy tissue of various depths in order to reach the cancerous matter.

"The Crookes tube, from which the Roentgen rays are emitted, is, of course, too bulky to be admitted into the mass of cancer, but there is no reason why a tiny fragment of radium sealed up in a fine glass tube should not be inserted into the very heart of the cancer, thus acting directly upon the diseased material. Would it not be worth while making experiments along this line?

"Dr. Bowers replied as follows: "Dear Dr. Bell: The suggestion which you make in regard to the application of the radium rays to the substance of deep-seated cancer I regard as very valuable. If such experiments are made, I have no doubt they would prove successful in many cases where we now have failures."

"When the letters were called to the attention of Dr. Bell by physicians here, he modestly declined to claim that his was the first suggestion. He added, however, that should an investigation

Mrs. Dodge for "Antis" Denies Ida Husted Harper's Charges

President of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage Says It Is Not Working with Liquor People in Montana.

Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, president of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, in a statement received at local headquarters of the anti-suffrage society, yesterday, denies in unqualified terms the assertion made by Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, of this city, and published in the Washington Post, that the anti-suffrage association is working with the liquor people in Montana. Mrs. Dodge says that as unlimited publicity was given to Mrs. Harper's charges, she and her husband are entitled to hear and the other side. "Justice and fairness demands it."

"The statement of Mrs. Dodge was as follows: "The suffragists, repeating in new form the oft disproved charge that the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage co-operates with the liquor interests, have published the report that this organization is now working with the liquor people in Montana. They base their accusation on the fact that Miss Clara E. Markeson, while in Butte, Montana, represented a committee of the national association, called on the assistant editor of the National

"JEWELRY SWINDLE" NETS CROOK $1,000

F. R. Hillyard, Jeweler, Robbed of Diamonds by Clever Stranger with Old Trick.

The time-worn "jewelry swindle" was worked on F. R. Hillyard, of 187 Seventh street northwest yesterday to the extent of $1,000 worth of diamonds.

A well-dressed man walked into Hillyard's jewelry shop, said he wanted to select some diamonds for his wife, picked out several beautiful stones, then asked Mr. Hillyard to go with him to his home in Sixth street northwest. Mr. Hillyard accompanied him. He was ushered into a parlor, asked to have a seat, while the would-be purchaser showed the "jewels" to his wife in another part of the house. The stranger disappeared out a rear door and has not been seen since. The swindle was reported to the police immediately and the case assigned to the plainclothes men of the Second precinct and Detectives William Messer and W. O. Embrey, of the Central office force.

ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL.

prove this to be the case nothing would please him more.

While medical men here have not made an exhaustive search to find if Dr. Bell was the originator of the "imbedding in tissue" idea, they believe that actual work along this line did not occur until three or four years later. They cite an article, written by Dr. William H. Dieffenbach, of New York, in the Medical Record of December 13, 1913, in which the early steps in the employment of radium as a curative agent are described.

Dr. Dieffenbach's telling of securing a tube of radium bromide of 150,000 activity in 1907 and of additions being made to this amount later. In 1908, he says, solutions of 5,000 activity of radium were dissolved in an aqueous solution of sodium chloride and animal product as a vehicle for disseminating radium within tissues by means of injections. The physician, one of the pioneers in this line, fails to state exactly when the actual imbedding of the radium itself first took place.

While they have not been able to find exact data on the subject, physicians in the office of the Surgeon General of the War Department are of the opinion that Dr. Bell's suggestion was the first of its kind to be made.

FAREWELL ADDRESS READ.

Only Observance of Washington's Birthday in Senate.

The farewell address of President George Washington was read in the Senate yesterday by Senator Swanson, of Virginia. The reading of this address, a tradition of the Senate, was the sole observance of the birthday anniversary of Washington. A call for quorum brought in fifty-eight Senators.

"There are some of us who believe the men who founded the American republic were guided by a hand that was not human," said Vice President Marshall, in announcing the reading of the address. "Of all those who loom large in the Valhalla of the American republic there is none of such stupendous importance as George Washington. The reading of this address, a tradition of the Senate, was the sole observance of the birthday anniversary of Washington. A call for quorum brought in fifty-eight Senators."

Miss Helen Bones and Miss Alexander, a White House guest, listened to the reading of the address. The galleries were crowded, an unusual number of richly-dressed women attending the session.

WOMEN OF SOUTH TAKING UP SUFFRAGE

Mrs. Estelle W. Ions Says They Have Been Misrepresented in Regard to Movement.

"Women of the South have been misrepresented in regard to equal suffrage." This statement was made yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Estelle Wiloughby Ions, of 1522 Calvert street northwest, a leader of the Southern Suffrage League.

"We hope soon to have a large membership," she said, "and are especially eager to have every Southern woman in Washington who is interested in equal suffrage join our club. There has been an erroneous notion abroad that Southern women are not progressive. This charge is nothing less than an indictment of Southern women's intelligence, which we resent."

"The president of the Alabama association, Mrs. Patty Ruffner Jacobs, told the truth as a delegate to the suffrage convention here last fall when she said that all Southern States are realizing that the vote is the only honorable way of obtaining recognition for women."

After a short stay in Washington, Mrs. O. H. Belmont, of New York, left for New York yesterday afternoon to attend to suffrage matters there.

"The Congressional Union is the strongest and most active suffrage organization," she said, "I have been watching its work, and the more I see of its methods the more I like them. I have decided to work with them in future."

Mrs. Belmont recently sent her check for $5,000 to the union and accepted a place on its executive committee.

Mrs. Belmont came here to establish her own headquarters for suffrage work and will in future divide her time between Washington and New York.

FUNERAL FOR MAJ. FLETCHER.

Army, retired, who died Sunday afternoon at his residence, 209 Hillyer place, at the age of eighty-four, will be held tomorrow afternoon at the family residence, at 2 o'clock. Interment will be private. The funeral will be in charge of the Loyal Legion, of which Maj. Fletcher was a member.

Maj. Fletcher was born in New York in 1846. He enlisted in Company C, of the Ohio Infantry, and remained in active army service until 1887, when he retired.

Miss Markeson's Visit Explained.

"In other words, they claim that their assertion is proved by the fact that Miss Markeson was sent across the continent for the express purpose of telling the Montana liquor people that this organization would in no way identify itself with them and their cause."

"Miss Markeson was sent to Montana. She did announce that under no circumstances would this organization make the fight against suffrage with the help of the liquor men. She spoke for the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, which would not permit itself to be stigmatized by even the appearance of co-operation with the suffragists' charge. She did this because the national association asserted that, as it asserts now, its right to choose its agents with whom it shall work and to refuse to be championed by undesirable persons or groups of persons."

BOARD OF TRADE WILL RECOMMEND PROJECTS

Monthly Meeting Thursday Night Will Be Devoted to Discussion of City Improvements.

A new Juvenile Court building and the conversion of alleys into minor streets are among the more important recommendations embodied in the reports to be submitted at the monthly meeting of the Board of Trade at the New Willard Thursday night.

The public schools committee will urge an appropriation for new buildings for the Central and M Street High Schools, and for a further appropriation for the purchase of a site and the erection of a suitable building for the Eastern High School. Wider use of the public school buildings for other than public school purposes will be recommended.

Approval of immediate provision for increasing the water supply will be asked by the water supply committee and endorsement of the water supply plan as embodied in the report of Lieut. Col. W. C. Langitt will be recommended.

The streets and avenues committee will recommend the elimination of existing alley conditions and the conversion of the alleys into thoroughfares. An increase in the number of policemen of the police department will be advocated by the public order committee, which also will urge new buildings for the House of Detention and the Juvenile Court.

Representative Julius Kahn, of California, will speak on the importance of State and District National Guards.

One of the features of the meeting will be an illustrated lecture on the "Mortal Defective." This will be divided into three parts: Dr. William A. White talking on cause and prevention; Dr. D. P. Hocking, on treatment, and P. A. Fenning, on the legal aspect.

BRITAIN'S ATTITUDE ON TOLLS DEFENDED

Exemption for America's Ships Would Be Fracture of Country's Word. Henry White Declares.

ADDRESSES STUDENTS OF G. W. U.

"There can be no doubt that the words 'all nations' included the United States," declared Henry W. White, former American Ambassador to Great Britain, in referring to that part of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain which provides that all nations shall use the Panama Canal on equal terms, in his speech on diplomacy delivered at the winter convocation of the George Washington University yesterday morning.

"Nobody not in touch with diplomatic affairs could realize," said Mr. White, "what a deplorable thing it was to know that this country was going back on its word. I would do anything that could be done with propriety for the resuscitation of our merchant marine, but I do not believe in violating our pledged word."

Mr. White as secretary of the embassy at London, in the absence of John Hay, who had been recalled to become Secretary of State, opened the negotiations for the repeal of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, which was later supplanted by the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, containing the provision regarding the use of the canal. One of the reasons that Great Britain permitted the repeal of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, Mr. White said, was that the canal should be open to all nations on equal terms.

Mr. White praised President Wilson for the stand he has taken on the Panama Canal tolls question.

He touched upon the value of early training for diplomats, and said that young men sent abroad in minor positions and trained early would find it a distinct advantage.

"The young men," said Mr. White, "should learn to ride, dance, and shoot, so that when invited out they will get a lot of inside information when parties are at their gaily. Valuable information is obtained in this way, often from women, but usually from men."

Admiral Charles R. Stockton, president of the university, wished the candidates success.

Dean Ruediger, of the Teachers' College, presented Miss Florence Virginia Morrison Corson, of Maryland, for the degree of bachelor of arts and sciences diploma. Dean Gregory, of the law school, presented Harvey Cleveland Bickel, of Pennsylvania, and James Ora Tolbert, of Iowa, for the degree of bachelor of law, and Arthur John Krause, of the District of Columbia, for the degree of doctor of philosophy, and asked that the degree of master of sciences be conferred on Olaf Mandt Hustedt, of Iowa, in absentia, which was done.

Of the total imports during January, 1914, 90.9 per cent entered free of duty, compared with 85.5 per cent in January, 1913. For the seven months ended January, 1914, 26 per cent of imports entered free, compared with 55.7 per cent for the similar period in 1913.
